

REYBERT

CHRONOLOGICAL EXCERPTS FROM CENSUS AND OTHER RECORDS

By Raymond J. Terry

Variations in spelling of the name Reybert: In census records enumerators often wrote what they thought they heard, information was sometimes given by neighbors when the targeted family was unavailable and enumerators' handwriting was at times difficult to interpret. The name is usually spelled Reybert/Raybert in civil vital records. Variations found to date are:

RAYBERT, REBERT, REBERTH, REBYERT, REEBERT, REIBERT, REMERT, REUBERT, REEGBERT, REMENT, REYBERD, REYBERT, REYBURT, REYBUT, RHIBERT RHIMET, RIBERT, RIBET, RIBIT, RIBUT, RIEBERT, RIEMERT, RIGLEST, RIMERT, RIVET, ROIBERT, ROYBERT, RUEBERT, RYBERT, RYBUT, BUTT, PAYBURT

Anna Reybert Powell (1858-1957) of Hempstead, LI, told this story (summarized):

A Hessian soldier (or perhaps two Hessian brothers) hid in a haystack rather than return to (Germany) about 1784. The British had to pay for each soldier not returning to his principality therefore tried to return each "Hessian" to his homeland.

He or they were living in New Jersey in 1784. (The Revolutionary War was fought from 1776 to 1781 and the last troops left our shores in 1783.) Our ancestor married an American woman. Their children grew and attended school. A Yankee schoolteacher Anglicized the name (whatever it was) to Reybert. The name is guessed to have been Reimer and the given name of our ancestor may have been Jacob, though this is less certain than the surname of Reimer, which itself is guess.

When one of the "Reimer" family died in Germany, his relatives were traced in this country and were notified that there was property in Germany if a representative would go over and claim it. No one would go to Hesse Cassel to present the claim. Anna said she was told this story by her grandfather, 6James H. Reybert. Anna's tale was repeated to me by four different descendants which accounts for variances from one to the other.

A researcher of the Long Island Reyberts was able to find descendents of the New Jersey Reyberts across the U.S. Mabel Reece Alexander of Sunnyvale, CA (dau of Ella B. L. Reybert and John Reece) reported that the New Jersey branch of the Reybert family has the tradition that the progenitor of the Reybert name was a Hessian soldier named "Rimert," very similar to the Long Island tale of "Reimer." When candidates who could have been the Hessian have been located in census records their names invariably have a final "t" -- Reberth, Rement, Rimert, Rhimet.

No listing of Reimer, Rimert or other variations with first name Jesse or Justus been found in the computer lists of Hessian troops in America compiled by the State Archives at Marburg, Germany.

NOTES:

1. Census roll number refers to National Archives (NARA) microfilm rolls, NARA, Washington, D.C.
2. A number has been temporarily assigned to each person in the first four U.S. generations.
3. Family linkages to the persons found in the 1790 census, the 1797 tax list, and 1800 census are speculative. No proof whatsoever has been uncovered The relationship of 2Robert, 6James H., and 24Jesse is also speculative. Only circumstances link them together: similar names, dates, locations, occupations, contact with one another and stories passed down to living Reybert descendents.

Paper making was the principal occupation of the early Reyberts. On Long Island's north shore, Hendrick Onderdonck, Henry Remsen and Hugh Gainie erected a paper mill at Hempstead Harbor, the present-day Roslyn, in 1773. It was believed to be the first in the state (p 449, Munsell's 1882 History of Queens County.)

The Reybert family name first appears in records at Hempstead Harbor, Town of North Hempstead, Queens Co., New York. Five paper mills were in operation here in 1810 (p227, Town of North Hempstead.)

The New Jersey branch of the Reybert family has been found mainly in Belleville, Essex Co., NJ, site of the Kingsland paper mill.

All of the identified members of the early U.S. generations (assuming each Reybert had a progenitor in common who was of Germanic origin) have been connected with the paper industry:

1Jesse/Justus/Justice Reberth/Rimert/Rement, living at Hempstead Harbor (first paper mill on LI) 1790, 1797, 1800.

2Robert Reybert, N.J., paper maker (death cert.)

6James H. Reybert, N.Y., paper mill owner (deed.)

7Jestis Rhimet, Jr., living at Hempstead Harbor 1797.

24Jesse Reybert, N.Y., paper manufacturer (directory.)

1790 FEDERAL CENSUS:

All of New York State was checked for variations of the name Reybert having a given name with first initial "J." (9 Jesse R-----'s.) One candidate was found which approximated J---- Reybert:

1. TOWN OF NORTH HEMPSTEAD, QUEENS CO., LONG ISLAND
(Site of first paper mill in New York State.)

Neighbors of 1Jesse Reberth 1790 North Hempstead Census

1Jesse Reberth was enumerated near John Rogers, Gregory Ritchie, Richard Manet and William Valentine. They were living on the east side of the mill ponds in Hempstead Harbor (p. 106.) On the west side of the mill ponds lived Hendrick Onderdonk, the owner of probably the first paper mill in the State of New York, established 1773 at Hempstead Harbor.

RICHARD MANET (p. 110): His birthplace and parents are unknown. He was in Hempstead Harbor in 1775 and at that time joined the militia company from the district of Great Neck-Cow Neck-Hempstead Harbor. He returned to Long Island after the war and was residing at Hempstead Harbor in 1789 along a highway, described thusly: "running from Richard Manet's house to along the east side of the mill swamp." In the 1790 census he was residing near the residence of William Valentine with a household of six free whites and one slave.

On 17 April 1795 Richard Manet, Andrew Onderdonck, William Valentine, and Richard Kirk were "proprietors of the school house at Hempstead Harbor."

GREGORY RITCHIE (p. 115): He was residing at Hempstead Harbor before the War and in 1775 enlisted with the Great Neck-Cow Neck-Hempstead Harbor Patriot militia company, commanded by Captain John Sands. Ritchie was one of the three musicians of the company, the hautboy (playing an instrument similar to an oboe.) After the war he returned to or continued to reside at Hempstead Harbor. His home was on what is now East Broadway in Roslyn Village. He ran a small mill on one of the ponds above the harbor for awhile. He carried out several transactions at the Hempstead Harbor paper mill in 1785 and 1786. He was employed at the paper mill in 1820. The 1790 census lists him with ten free whites and no slaves.

At the time of the 1801 assessment he owned no real estate within North Hempstead Township. He is listed as Gregory Ritchie & Son with $60 personal property.

WILLIAM VALENTINE (p. 94): He was born in 1741 in the northern part of Hempstead Township which would today be Roslyn Village. He married Phebe Smith in 1764 and settled at Hempstead Harbor. He was appointed one of the highway overseers in 1773. He served as a private in the militia company of Captain John Sands. After the defeat at Brooklyn in August, 1776, he remained on Long Island and in October signed allegiance to King George III. During the occupation he was given a wood quota of four cords to be supplied to the British and Hessian forces on Long Island. He carried on business at the Hempstead Harbor paper mill during 1790, 91, and 1792. He served as one of the proprietors of the Hempstead Harbor school house in April, 1795 and in 1796 was appointed the township school commissioner.

He appears in the 1790 census with ten free whites and no slaves. His youngest son William ran the paper mill and store at Hempstead Harbor in later years and resided in what is now the Roslyn Village Hall.

HENDRICK ONDERDONK (p. 72): Born Jamaica 11 Dec 1724. Married Phebe Treadwell 1750. Moved to Hempstead Harbor 1752. 1758 bought the grist mill at the head of Hempstead Harbor for 1100 lbs. 1773, Onderdonk, Henry Remsen and Hugh Gaine erected the first paper mill on Long Island at Hempstead Harbor. During the seven year occupation his home was occupied at times by Hessian troops -- Captain Baron Ewald's men of the Hessian Jager Corps, under the command of Lt. Col. Lewis de Wurmb. The home is now the George Washington Manor at Roslyn Village. In 1801 his mill and farm were sold to Abraham Coles and Daniel Hoagland. He had 13 children. His wife died 1801, he 1809. Both are buried on Cow Neck.

JOHN ROGERS (p. 72): Hendrick Onderdonk's home was raided during the occupation. Andrew ran to John Rogers' home for assistance -- Rogers was a blacksmith and lived in the small home at the north end of East Broadway. It is still standing.

1793 -- 2Robert Reybert born on Long Island, occupation paper maker, father 1Jesse Reybert, mother Eliz. (abstract of his death record, N.J. State Archives, see 1871 entry.) Died Bloomfield, N.J., 11 June 1871 age 78. His home was on what is now Passaic Avenue in Stone House Plains, now Brookdale.

1795 -- 6J. H. Reybert born 29 Jan 1795 (tombstone in Bay Shore, Islip Town, Suffolk, N.Y.) born New York (1855, 1860, 1870 census) and on Long Island (death cert. of his son, 14Jesse Reybert); in New Jersey (death cert. of his son 17Jacob Smith Reybert). Living Brooklyn 1870 with daughter Phoebe Dods and her husband (1870 census) but without wife Jane. Died 14 Jun 1875 (tombstone at Oakwood Cemetery, Bay Shore, NY). No death record has been found. James Harris Reybert born 1795 at Hempstead Harbor, (now Roslyn) according to the annotated photograph of James and Jane by granddaughter Jessie May Rogers and formerly possessed by Julia D. Halstead, Brooklyn, NY 6 July 1991, who gave it to R.J. Terry.)

A connection between New Jersey and Long Island Reyberts existed according to the data supplied by survivors in vital records: New Jersey residents shown as having been born on Long Island and vice versa.

3. CONNECTICUT: No Reybert name combos.

1800/1810 -- 24Jesse Reybert born per 1840 census of New York City (1 male age 30-40.) Beginning 1832, is listed in City directories as a paper manufacturer. He may be a son of 1Justice Rement or a son of 7Jestis Rhimet, Jr. He could be 7Jestis Rhimet, Jr., but the 1840 Fed. Census would have been in error by 10 to 20 years in citing his age category.

1801 -- Jane Covert, wife of James Harris Reybert, born at Fosters Meadow (now Elmont) 1801 per the annotated photograph of James and Jane which was in the possession of Julia D. Halstead of Brooklyn, July 1991. Exact date of birth from inscription on headstone (which is missing in 1991), Oakwood Cemetery, Bay Shore, LI, NY: 28 Dec 1801. Inscriptions were copied by DAR in 1923 and submitted to National Hdqtrrs, Washington, DC by Lavonne Cushman Gibson, wife of John James Gibson, great-grandson of James and Jane (Covert) Reybert.

Fosters Meadow was in the Town of Hempstead (which had lost the northern section after the Revolution because of lingering bad feelings about the south's support for the British. The northern section became North Hempstead.)

Born Bay Shore, Town of Islip, acc/to lineage chart in poss of Harold Thurber of Sonoita, AZ and DAR lineage submitted by Hettie Belle Thurber Horton (no proofs), and obituary 1914 (died Richmond Hill). But if her father is listed in the 1820 census in North Hempstead and didn't buy land in the Town of Islip until 1835, the place remains to be proved. Note also that Harold Thurber listed James' wife as Jane Cartier, not Jane Covert. His records may therefore be questionable regarding the Reybert line.

1823 -- Birth: Child of James H. Reybert: 17Jacob Smith Reybert born New York per death certificate (NY State cert., d 21 Nov 1908). Some descendants think the Hessian's name was 1Jacob. Stone House Plains Marriages by Groom

Groom	Bride	Marriage Date
Reybert, Jesse	Powelson, Effe	May 1, 1824

Stone House Plains, Essex, New Jersey:

The northern portion of the present Town of Bloomfield, New Jersey, has been known as Brookdale since 1873, when the post office was established in the present "Jack's Confectionary Store." The old name of Stone House Plains was considered too long and the one of Brookdale adopted.

Just when Stone House Plains received its name is known. The name was already in use in 1697 when several deeds drawn up. At that time the old Abraham Van Giesen house and the Philip Van Riper house were standing. According to tradition it was the Van Giesen house that gave Stone House Plains its name.

The approximate boundaries of Stone House Plains were: Grove Street, Upper Montclair on the west; a line about 300 feet north of Bay Avenue on the south; the present Bloomfield-Nutley boundary on the east; and a line about 500 feet north of the present Essex-Passaic county line at Broad Street, running east to the present corner of Sylvan Road and Darling Avenue on the north.

The Brookdale Reformed Church was first known in 1795 as the "Reformed Dutch Church at Stone House Plains" with services held in a barn and the congregation sitting on rough benches. In 1802, a year after incorporation, the church building was erected, sans steeple or tower. Long distance worshippers came to church bare footed to save on the shoe leather. In 1910, fire destroyed the church and the present buildings erected.

-- Independent Press, Bloomfield
8 Aug 1947

Wilma Johnson, of near Newport News, VA (Robert Reybert descendant) (Sep 1991) says that the Robert Reybert family is buried in the churchyard. There are no stones.

The first settlers in what is today Bloomfield were the Dutch who filtered down from the settlement at Acquackanonk into the northern edge of town. As early as 1695 this area became known as Stone House Plains after a house constructed of fieldstone close to a nearby quarry.

The Van Giesens were believed to have been the first residents of this area. Soon, other families began migrating from Long Island, Bergen, Communipaw (Jersey City) and Passaic. Among these were the Powlesons, the Messlars, the Cockefairs and the Van Houtens.

Most of the early settlers were not farmers but artisans and worked at a skilled trade. This was mainly due to the fact that the area at that time was unsuitable for farming. The swampy ground was overgrown with beech trees, rocks and shallow ponds. The best that any settler could do was to cultivate a small garden patch for necessities. Once the early inhabitants started clearing the grounds they found a soil very suitable to farming and small farms began to appear.

At this time, the earliest settlers would travel to the Dutch Reformed Church at Acquackanonk which was organized in 1691 and the Reformed Church at Second River (Belleville) which was organized in 1700. As population in the area increased and a small village formed, the inhabitants became increasingly unified over the question of having their own services so they wouldn't have to travel the long distances to the Acquackanonk and Second River churches, six miles apart and reached after a long, painstaking journey over crude, muddy and rocky roads which were very cold in the winter and sweltering in the summer.

In October, 1794, Reverend Peter Stryker was installed as the pastor of the Reformed Church of Second River, where most of the inhabitants attended services. The next year, Rev. Stryker began holding services in the barn of Captain John A. Garrabrant. The congregation had formed that year and consisted of members from the old towns of Franklin, Houten, Claverack, the Notch Neighborhood, Over the Mountain, Speertown, Cranetown and Stone House Plain.

Services had originated in a house but Captain Garra-brant's barn could better accommodate the new congregation. His home stood behind what is today 1288 Broad Street. The barn stood a short distance down present-day Irwin Place, therefore the accounts which say the barn stood on the site of the church and was torn down when the church was erected are incorrect. The facilities were crude at best. Rough boards, placed on blocks of wood, served as pews while the pulpit consisted of a high box.

Under the direction of Rev. Stryker, the group applied to the Classis at Bergen to establish a legal congregation. The minutes of the Classis for April 20, 1801 read, "A request from the people belonging to the congregation of Second River, living in the neighborhoods of Speertown, Stone House Plain, etc., to be organized into a congregation, to place them in a situation to build a church for the better accommodation of performing public worship, was laid before this Classis." The application was granted and Rev. Peter Stryker was authorized to perform the service. On October 3, 1801, the congregation adopted the name, "The Reformed Dutch Church at Stone House Plains."

In 1802 construction began on land donated by Abram Garrabrant, which was previously owned by the Van Giesen family, and completed in 1808. Services were held during the construction of the building. The completed structure was forty by fifty feet and had no steeple or bell. On either side of the church were the family rooms where little children could amuse themselves while their elders listened to the sermon. The church was lit only by candles or tallow dips furnished by the congregation. Coal oil lamps were introduced in 1859.

1832 -- 20Sarah Jane Reybert, dau of 6James H., born (1860 Census), died 1868 (tombstone at Kensico Cemetery, Valhalla, NY). No death record found.

1835 -- 21James Monroe Reybert, son of 6James H., born (1860 Census). Buried Woodlawn Cemetery, Newburgh, NY, with wife Emaline Halstead and b-i-l Harry Halstead.

1835/36: 6James H. REYBERT bought 3 connected pieces of land in Town of Islip, Suffolk County, New York. Deeds state he is to build a paper mill near the Orawoc brook or stream, also called Saxton's stream. Total $1618.

"Orawac -- On this brook at Islip was located the "Paper Mill." The Patent to Andrew Gibb in 1692, by Gov. Ingoldsby reads, "For a certain tract of vacant land on Long Island commonly called Wingatt Happah Neck -- bounded on the west by Orewack River." This part of the Town of Islip was the last settled, which can be easily understood because the Indian meaning of the word "Orawac" is vacant land or wild land. This is also attested to by the fact that aboriginal relics or other evidences of an Indian village are very rare. The brook now known as Orawac was once known as Cachinnac. Mention is made of this brook in the settlement of a dispute between Anning Mowbray and Mr. Nicoll, 31 Oct 1794, viz.: "determined the head of said River to be at a certain maple tree standing one rod north of where an old road crosses the head of said brook or river and from thence west and by south until the head of the Cachinnac River bears south." (George L. Weeks, Islip 1953 Almanac.)

It appears 6James H. Was 24Jesse a brother or nephew of 6James H.? 6James H.'s children 22Elizabeth and 14Jesse remained in Islip. His other children followed to New York City and/or Brooklyn.

This marks the transition from 24Jesse to 6James H. in the paper business, with 24Jesse's wife now listed as widow. Was 6James' move to New York City in anticipation of 24Jesse's death? 24Jesse's burial location is unknown.

18Julia Halstead is 6James' daughter. 50Edward Halstead is 6James' grandson. 21James M. Reybert is 6James' son. 19Phoebe C. Reybert is 6James' daughter.

John must be 6James. A 'John' has not been encountered in 6James' family priorly -- but Jane, the wife of 6James, is not listed here (she died in 1885) -- which could be an indication that 6James and 6aJane are elsewhere and the John above is legitimate. A New York City directory lists 6James H. and 21James M. as working together at 58 Gold St. and living together at 298 - 7th St, NYC in 1860. It appears that John is the wrong name. In addition, no John is ever listed in the NYC directory. However, 6James' daughter Mary married John Coles and the ownership of the Coles plot at Cypress Hills Cemetery, Brooklyn is in the names of John S. Reybert and John W. Coles, date of deed 9 Mar 1866. The original handwritten record is not available, if it exists. Only a typewritten card can be obtained which is the copyist's interpretation of the handwriting. Robert Reybert had a son John L., b N.J. who served in the Civil War in the Navy and afterward worked as a mariner. He died in the Mariner's Hospital on Staten Island and is buried in Woodland Cemetery on that island.

1868 -- Village of Bay Shore, Town of Islip, LI, NY: "John Mowbray bought the lands comprising the present town of Islip from the Secatogue Indians in 1701 for handful of eel spears. The village was named Mechanicsville. By 1849, the growth of the area required the establishment of a post office and Mechanicsville petitioned for one but found that a town of the same name already existed in New York State so selected the name Penataquit in honor of Indians who had inhabited the land.

"For the next 20 years, residents stumbled over the spelling and pronunciation of "Penataquit," finally changing it to "Bay Shore," as the community was on the bay and its center was nearer to the shore than any other community at that time on the South Shore of Long Island.

"Bay Shore's development shot ahead in 1886 with the extension of the railroad from the west and the drawing of plans for a public highway. The fire department and first newspaper, The Journal, were founded and the community began expanding from a clamming, fishing and agricultural center to a summer resort." -- Bay Shore Sentinel, now defunct.

19Phebe is 6James H. Reybert's daughter. It was known from family records that she married Dr. John B. Dods, but not that there was 46 years difference in age between them! John Bovee Dods was an author of books dealing with mesmerism and "various important subjects." His works are filed in the rare book room at the Library of Congress, Harry Houdini Collection. Dr. Dods is described as having been an amateur physician, only treating members of his congregation. However, Alexander Reybert, who lived in Plainfield, NJ at the time Dr. Dods was living in Brooklyn, mentions in his Civil War pension application that Dr. Dods had been his physician in the late 1860's. If 6James and 2Robert were brothers, then 11Alexander is 19Phebe Dods' first cousin.

This record also verifies 6James H. Reybert's birthdate as given on his tombstone at Oakwood Cemetery, Bay Shore, N.Y., which was seen by Raymond Terry who recorded the data on it in 1970, but which in 1990 is gone, having been broken off at the base. The cemetery office has no knowledge of its whereabouts. It was located near the tombstone of 6James H.'s son, 14Jesse.) The DAR Library, Washington, DC, has a volume of Oakwood Cemetery inscriptions compiled by Lavonne C. Gibson, 1923, which contains the same information I observed in 1970.

Scanned pp 123 - 150 for other names. Dods' neighborhood had many people with above average assets.

Where is 6James H. Reybert's wife, Jane? She was on the tombstone with 6James H., she having died 1885. But she is not with 6James H. in 1860 or 1870 census, nor is she living with any of her children, nor is she living alone or with another family in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania. (1870: only L.I. & Brooklyn searched.)

FROM JAMES RAYBERT'S CIVIL WAR WIDOW'S PENSION FILE:

1. General Affidavit regarding Emeline Kingsland Nelson Reybert's first husband.

2 Oct 1891: It is impossible for deponent to furnish the evidence indicated in the appended communication of the Pension Bureau dated Sept 28, 1891, for the reason that she does not know any person or persons, or the whereabouts of any, nor where to find any, that was acquainted with or ever knew her former husband Benjamin Nelson. That her said former husband was a Norwegian, followed the sea for a living, and deponent has entirely forgotten what he ever told her as to his birthplace, or where he was brought up. That deponent never knew, nor saw any of his relations, and never knew what relations he had either during my married life with him, not at any other time since. Under these circumstances it is a physical impossibility for deponent to furnish the evidence of any other person than herself with regard to her first husband because there is none living to the best of her knowledge, information, and belief that ever knew him.

2. Affidavit of claim and as to soldiers service and correct spelling of name. 10 May 1892.

In the matter of the claim to Pension No. 451,894 of Emeline Reybert, widow of James Reybert, deceased, late of Co. H 1st New York Engineers..., Emeline Reybert aged about 68, a resident of New York City in the county of New York and state of New York whose post office address is 604 W 47th St, declares...that I am the claimant in the above claim. I further say that my above named husband James Reybert had never been in the military or naval service of the United States since the 26th day of December 1864, the date of his discharge from the above named military service. That I was personally well acquainted with said soldier from the time he was ten years of age and the above matters are therefore known to me of my own personal knowledge. I further say that my said husband always spelled his name "James Reybert" and that is the correct way of spelling it.

(Note: James Reybert's death record, NY City 1887 is spelled "Raybert." His burial record at Maple Grove Cemetery, Queens County, is spelled "Raybert.")

3. Affidavit that the Claimant has not Re-married, and that She is without other means of Support than her Daily Labor.

11 Dec 1890: We, James McCool age 45 years, and residing at 137 W 30th St., and Peter Groden age 46 years and reside at 547 W 49th St, City of New York...swear that we are neighbors of Emeline Reybert who is the widow of James Reybert...and that for the past 18 years to 23 years we have been well acquainted with said Emeline Reybert and from our frequent intercourse and conversations, and from other circumstances, we have every reason to believe, and we do know from Public repute that the said Emeline Reybert has not re-married since the death of the above-mentioned James Reybert who was an artificer in Co H 1st New York Engineers. Further, we say that if she had re-married we have reason to believe that we should have known it.

We also believe from the knowledge we have of said widow that she neither owns nor has in use any property of any kind from which a revenue can be derived; that she has no income or present means of support than her daily labor of washing and ironing and that she has not had any other means of support since the 27th day of June A.D. 1890 nor previous. That the said claimant does not own or possess and is not interested in either directly or indirectly any real estate, nor any other property except a small amount of household furniture.

All these matters we have a personal knowledge of, and we have no interest whatever in the subject matter of this affidavit.

4. General affidavit. Additional evidence regarding first husband.

18 Mar 1891: (Emeline Reybert aged about 68 years) is the claimant in the above claim, that her said husband had never been in the military or naval service of the United States since the 26th day of December 1864, that he was never in any other service either military or naval than the one from which he was discharged on the 26th day of December 1864, that she is unable to furnish any evidence of the death of her first husband Benjamin Nelson for the reason that she does not know when or where he died, and she does not now know any person or persons who were acquainted with him in his lifetime. That her said first husband was a Norwegian, and he followed the sea for a living. That he last went to sea at least thirty years ago on a vessel the name of which is unknown to deponent, and the probability is that said vessel was lost, and he was drowned. He was never heard of or from either directly or indirectly by either deponent nor any other person to her knowledge since he took said voyage either in 1860 or 1861. That deponent does not know the name of said vessel on which her husband sailed, nor the port to which he was bound nor any person who went with him, nor who the owners of the vessel were.

Re: John L. Reybert, Lillian Cognetta sent this from the NY Times dated 24 Dec 1882:

A MISSING DEED FOUND

Late in August last John L. Reybert, a seafaring man whose home was in Sumter County, Fla., was taken ill while in Brooklyn and went to the Marine Hospital on Staten Island for treatment, and died there. He had been staying at the residence of his cousin, Mrs. P. C. Potts, 385 Bridge-street, Brooklyn. he sent no word to her, or to his brothers in Newark, about his illness, and the first they knew of his death was when they were given notice of it by the hospital authorities. His relatives knew that he owned some land in Florida, and that the deed for it was in a sachel which he usually carried with him, but it could not be found after his death.

About the time that Reybert went to the hospital an old sachel was left in Herman Steffen's place, 67 South-street. It finally found its way into the ash barrel, and, on Saturday, into the hands of the police at the Old-Slip Station House. In the sachel were a few postal cards and letters and a deed of some lots in Washington County, Fla., which was conveyed to James L. Reybert by the St. Andrew's Bay Railroad and Land Company, the head office of which is in Cincinnati."

PORTRAIT AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD OF
SUFFOLK COUNTY, N.Y., 1896

EDGAR REYBERT. Probably no man is more conversant with the immense growth of the oyster industry along the southern shore of Long Island than the subject of this article, who has in the forty-three years in which he has resided in the village seen it grow from almost nothing to its present immense proportions.

The father of our subject was Jesse Reybert, a native of this island, and a man of bold and adventurous character, having sailed the seas for many years, and risen to the rank of Captain. His life was up to the full limits, and he died at about the age of seventy years. He was married to Anna Duryea, a native of Long Island, by whom he became the father of six children, of whom the eldest, Jesse, is now deceased; Rhoda is the wife of Samuel Gibson; Jarvis and Edgar are the third and fourth sons; Delphine is the wife of Elwood Clock; and Anna, the youngest of the family, married to Alonzo Powell.

Edgar Reybert, the subject of this sketch, was born in the village of Bay Shore, December 11, 1853, and was educated in the common school of the neighborhood, receiving some special training in a private school established in the village, which undertook to go a little farther than the district school. Edgar inherited much of his father's love of the sea, and when he had reached the age of eighteen he became a sailor before the mast, and in this way he spent the next ten or twelve years. He then turned his attention towards the oyster business as offering peculiar attractions to men of an enterprising spirit, and in this he certainly has won great success.

Mr. Reybert has had two wives, Jennie Saxton, and Alice Doxsee, being married the last time in June, 1888. His first wife was the mother of four children, of whom three are now living. Gussie is the wife of Charles Willey, and lives at Bay Shore; Eveline is the wife of George Oakley, whose home is also in Bay Shore; Edward is the youngest, and is now attending the public school of this village. Our subject is a prominent Mason, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is highly esteemed.

In the oyster business Mr. Reybert has won a name and standing that have carried his business reputation far beyond the island. He grows large quantities of oysters in Great South Bay, employs many men and boats, and does a large business in the luscious bivalves. He is also a great lover of good horses, having some fine steppers in his possession, and has all the accoutrements and paraphernalia of a trotting stable, which, however, is kept for his own comfort and the entertainment of his friends. Politically he acts with the Democratic party, but in a broad way seeking rather the good of the community than the attainment of mere partisan advantages. He has done much for the upbuilding of this town and its business interests, and in return he is very favorably known and highly regarded both in and out of the village.

DAVID HAS BEEN COUNTED TWICE. Hester appears with David and his family in the 1880 Boston census, and in city directories in Brooklyn and Boston, always living with son David.

Hester is living with David and Sarah 1880 census. Hester (widow) and David living with Daniel and Catherine Anderson 1850 census. David and Sarah had a son Daniel Anderson Haight, born at Boston, Mass.

Indications are that something is amiss with the information provided to the census taker. Hester died from kidney disease a few months after the 1900 census was taken. Perhaps her mind was affected by toxemia due to kidney disease and she misinformed the enumerator that her son David was single and living with her.

At DAR Library, Washington, DC: An extract from notes written on the flyleaf of a Stanley genealogy: Nathan Wilmot Stanley's tie-in to the lineages in the book. (Charles S. DOB and age don't agree.) The American Medical Association has no record of a physician named Nathan Wilmot Stanley (Sept 1991).

Perhaps Mr. Stanley's practice is similar to that of John Bovee Dods (Phoebe Reybert's husband), having to do with mesmerism and electrical psychology, etc.

The ages of the children do not agree with cemetery records.

Ella is the daughter of George Reybert, Civil War veteran. Her husband John went to California to work as a stonecutter at Stanford University about 1900. He sent his wife Ella and children home to New Jersey after the 1906 earthquake for about 2 years. Not long after he brought them back to Calif. he became progressively incapacitated by stomach cancer, succumbing about 1910. The family remained on the West Coast--descendants today live in California, Oregon and Texas. Ella's daughter Mabel, passed away in 1994 at Santa Clara, CA.

Speculations about the Reybert family history.

1800-1810 Jesse Reybert born (1840 census of New

	1	female	over 45	(wife's mother?)

*James HARRIS Reybert (a Harris in 1797 list & 1800 census)
 Jacob SMITH Reybert (various records)

The Hessian leaves his British employers on Long Island or travels to Long Island from perhaps New Jersey.

Justus moves to NJ (or dies) 1800-1810. He or his widow take the family, including Robert, James and Jesse and the three girls to (New Jersey?). The older woman in the 1800 census may be the wife's mother.

He finds himself in the Hempstead Harbor area, working as a woodcutter for the nearby paper mill.

He marries an American woman named Elizabeth, perhaps a family member of a fellow woodcutter (a neighbor in 1797 and 1800 is Robt. Harris; a son is named James Harris Reybert).

They have at least 4 boys (Jestis Jr., James, Robert, Jesse) and 3 girls (2 of whom are Phoebe and Mary).

(A problem: Why would the boys be in the paper-related business if the father died while they were in their pre-teens, presumably before being trained by him?)

Assuming the boys also work at woodcutting or at jobs associated with the paper mill--3 of them wind up in paper-associated work: James at papermaking in the Town of Islip, LI; Robert at papermaking in Essex County, NJ; Jesse in the paper-stock business (supplied by James & Robert?).

Then:

1. Robert moves to New Jersey and works in the papermaking industry. He marries Lucinda Lawrence in 1831.

2. James remains in, or moves back to, Long Island to the North Hempstead area and works in the papermaking industry.

James appears in North Hempstead census, 1820. He married Jane Covert in New Jersey (Dutch Ref. Church record). Their first child was born 1818 (Jesse). Most census records state he was born New York. Jesse's death certificate says Belleville, New Jersey, near Stone House Plain. No record of Jane's existence prior to marriage can be found on Long Island except the annotated (by Jessie May Rogers, his granddaughter) photo of James and Jane provided by Julia Halstead, which states Jane is from Foster's Meadow, today's Elmont.

3. One daughter of the Hessian, Phebe Rybert, marries Clark Horton 1818, Essex Co, NJ and another, Mary, marries John Ward 1821, also Essex Co, NJ.

4. James moves or visits New Canton, CT, before or about 1828, where his daughter Julia Ann is born at New Canton (another annotated photo by Jessie May Rogers, Julia's daughter.)

To be checked - CT for papermaking in the New Canton area.

5. Jesse marries Effa Powleson at Stone House Plains in 1824. Effa inherits land in 1828 in New Jersey. Jesse moves to New York City about 1830, where he operates a paper-stock business.

6. The Hessian's wife Elizabeth (Robert's death cert, 1845 newspaper obit) remains in New Jersey awhile, possibly living with one of her daughters. (Not in 1840 census with Jesse in NYC, not living alone in New York or New Jersey.)

7. James moves to Bay Shore, Long Island in 1835 and purchases land on the Orawac Canal in the town of Islip to operate a paper mill.

8. The Hessian's wife dies in NY City: "5 Apr 1845 Mrs. Elizabeth Rybert died at New York". At some point in the 1840's she moved to live with Jesse. No proof.

9. Jesse dies in the 1847/1848 time frame. James sells his paper-mill property at Islip in 1847 and moves to New York City. He takes over Jesse's business.

10. James' son, James Monroe, joins in the paper-stock business. James Monroe also manufactures "Mrs. S.A. Reybert's Vegetable Excelsior Hair Tonic." Sarah Amanda Pruden Reybert is the wife of Alexander L. Reybert of Plainfield, N.J., a connection between the N.J. and N.Y. Reyberts.

-- SUMMARY --

1Jesse Reberth/Justus Rimert/Justice Rement may be the same person. He lived at the site of the first paper mill in the state of New York. His neighbors in 1790, 1797 and 1800 are workers at the Onderdonk paper mill. According to family tradition, the progenitor of the family was a "Hessian" soldier who deserted, settled in New Jersey, married a Yankee, and saw the family name changed to Reybert by his children's schoolmaster. On Long Island it is thought that the original name was Reimer; in New Jersey, Rimert.

6James Harris Reybert's name first appears in the 1820 census of North Hempstead in the general vicinity of the families living near 1Jesse/Justus/Justice. An 1835 deed, town of Islip, LI, shows his intent to establish a paper mill on the Orawac Canal, Town of Islip. He moved to New York City by 1847, where 6James H. Reybert had a paper store at 77 W 19th St. He continued in the paper business through 1862. He is living with his daughter 19Phoebe at the 1870 census, no profession listed. He married 6aJane Covert of Foster Meadow, LI (now Elmont). Her parents are unknown. She was born in 1801. Apparently their first child, 14Jesse, was born in 1818. His birth place appears variously in the records as NJ or NY. 18Julia is the only other child not to have been born in New York. Census records and her death certificate list her birth place as Connecticut. A photograph of Julia Ann Reybert Halstead Rogers given to R. J. Terry by Julia D. Halstead of Brooklyn, July 1991, specifies New Canton, Conn., now North Canton, not far from Hartford. 6James Reybert's family does not appear in any extant 1830 census. His family is in Islip, LI in 1840 (census, name spelled "Reegbert"), not found 1850 census, but is in the New York City 1855 census.

24Jesse Reybert, purported brother of James H. & Robert, appears in the business directories of New York City in 1832, dealing in paper stock. He disappears about the time 6James Harris Reybert is first listed, in 1847. 24Jesse's wife 24aEffa is listed as a widow in an 1852 New York City directory. She hailed from New Jersey (Essex Co., NJ, partition of the estate of Paules Powleson, 1828: Effee, wife of Jesse Rybert; records of the Dutch Reformed Church at Stone House Plains, NJ (now Brookdale): 1824 Jesse "Payburt" married Effie Powleson.) Jesse's children are born in New Jersey prior to 1831 and in New York 1831 and later according to their death certificates.

7Jestis Rhimet, Jr. appears in one record -- the 1797 tax list of North Hempstead. This agrees with the 1790 census of North Hempstead. Is he the son of 1Justice Rement, cited in the same list? No further record of him has been found. Could he be 24Jesse Reybert of NYC. However, the apparent ages of 7Jestis and 24Jesse differ significantly as indicated by census age categories.

2Robert Reybert's death certificate (New Jersey, 1871) yields the important information that he was born on Long Island in 1793 (age 78 at death), he was a papermaker, and his parents were 1Jesse and 1aEliz. Reybert. His wife, 2aLucinda Lawrence was from New Jersey, and he married her there (marriage notice in vital statistics index, NJ Historical Society and wife's will, NJ State Archives). They homesteaded at Stone House Plains, where his brother (?) 24Jesse married 24aEffie Powleson. His mother may have died in New York City (Long Island Star 5 Apr 1845 1a"Mrs. Elizabeth Rybert, age 79, died in New York.")

The 1790 and 1800 censuses of North Hempstead and the 1797 tax list, same town, and other records and directories agree with the following hypothesis:

6James, 2Robert and 24Jesse are the sons of 1Justus Rement, etc., all born after 1790. 7Jestis Rhimet, Jr., was born prior to 1790. Three daughters, 3, 4, 5, all unknown, were born after 1790. However, two marriage records have been found in Essex County, NJ: 1818 Phebe Rybert married Clark Horton and 1821 Mary Rybert married John Ward. Further research is needed to link these women to the Reybert family. 1Jesse/Justice/Justus (name variations may be due to German accent) married 1aElizabeth who was born 1766 (79-1845). All children were born on Long Island. The family moved to New Jersey after 1800 (no census extant until 1830).

1Jesse/Justice/Justus may have returned to a locale in New Jersey at which he and a brother originally had settled after leaving the employ of the British King, or he may have died at North Hempstead and his widow returned to her family in New Jersey with her children. 2Robert remained in New Jersey throughout his life. 24Jesse moved to New York City about 1830 and died about 1849. Funds for opening a business in New York City may have been acquired as a result of his wife Effa's inheritance of land from her father 1828. 1aElizabeth Reybert, the wife of the 1Hessian, moved to New York City from New Jersey during the 1840's (she does not appear with Jesse in the 1840 census, nor as a head of household in the 1840 New Jersey or New York censuses) and lived with her son 24Jesse. 6James moved around: perhaps from Belleville, NJ, then to North Hempstead a couple of years after the birth of his first child (Jesse) in 1818, then to Connecticut between 1820 and 1828, then to Islip between 1830 and 1835, then to New York City about 1847 to take over the business of his ill brother, 24Jesse.

6James' wife 6aJane's whereabouts after 1860 are puzzling. She is not in the 1870 and 1880 censuses nor can a death record be found from New York State or the New York City and surrounding counties or from New Jersey. Her marker at Oakwood Cemetery is inscribed, "1801-1885." All of her children's death records name her "Jane Covert." Her daughter 18Julia's great-granddaughter, Julia D. Halstead, gave me photographs in 1991 which were annotated by Jessie May Rogers Rodgers Fletcher MacClellan, daughter of 18Julia, as to the birthplaces of 6James, 6aJane, and 18Julia.
